999985 A fire extinguisher, even a small one, located near the kitchen is a wise investment. But be sure that the extinguisher is rated to put out kitchen fires. What the extinguisher is designed to do is stated on the outside. Rather than bother trying to determine which one is best for you, just get an extinguisher that is rated to control all three primary types of fires: (79) ordinary combustibles such as paper and wood;

(80) flammable liquids, such as fat, gasoline and grease; and (81) electric fires. Read the directions carefully. Teach everyone in the family how to operate the extinguisher, and do not buy one that is too heavy for a child of nine or ten to lift.

79. We learn from the passage that ...

A) not all extinguishers are useful in all types of fires

- B) a large extinguisher is more effective than a small one
- C) fire extinguishers can be very expensive
- D) it is best to keep the extinguisher in the kitchen
- 80. The author advises people wanting to buy an extinguisher for kitchen fires to purchase one

A) that comes with a full set of instructions

B) that is based on whether they have an electric or gas cooker

C) that can put out the main types of fire

D) that displays its functions on the outside

81. Choose the answer which correctly completes the sentence.

However, there are still some optimists who never ... hope. A) give up B) run into

C) bring up D) give in

In 1948 in an effort to stabilize the currency, the Chinese government announced the issue of a new form of currency, called the Gold Yuan Certificate. This measure was necessary because the people had lost all confidence in the old currency, called the Fa Bi. Inflation had escalated to the point where one US dollar was worth 11 million Fa Bi. Official announcements called for all Chinese to turn in their old banknotes, their gold and silver and their foreign currency. Gold Yuan Certificates would be given in exchange, supposedly backed by gold and each worth four to one American dollar. Immediately there was a gold rush, as most private depositors withdrew their precious metals and foreign currency from local banks, because no one with common sense believed that there was any gold to back those certificates.

82. The writer states that the Chinese government had to issue the Gold Yuan Certificates \dots .

A) in response to people and banks hoarding foreign currency

B) because the people had lost faith in the old currencyC) after the supply of the Fa Bi dropped to an all - time low

D) owing to financial pressure from American bankers

83. We learn that the Gold Yuan Certificates \dots .

A) represented gold actually held by the Chinese government

B) could be readily exchanged for American dollars at most banks

C) were the invention of the Chinese government's efforts to combat inflation

D) were each worth approximately eleven million Chinese Yuan

A) because they believed the certificates were worthlessB) because banks were going bankrupt

C) in order to buy more gold in the gold rushD) so that they could buy Gold Yuan Certificates Questions from 78 to 80 are based on the text below The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (IBRD) known as "the International Bank" or as "the World Bank", is an agency of the United Nations established In 1945. It has the primary function of making loans available to assist developing countries . Usually, loans are made to finance specific project s of investment in underdeveloped countries; and the Bank will normally make a loan only if it is satisfied that the investment will yield a revenue sufficient to enable the payment of Interest on the loan, and repayment of the sum lent. In 1983 the Bank made loans to the value of $3,300 million. Thus a sizable amount of lending is channeled through the Bank, but it is clear that some projects of great value to underdeveloped countries cannot be financed in this way, because they would not yield returns quickly enough or large enough to meet the Bank's requirements for interest and repayment.

85. It is pointed out in the passage that the World Bank was founded in order to \dots .

A) provide the nations with a constant source of income for its various projects

B) give loans to all the countries in the world on an equal basis, regardless of their economic position

C) provide underdeveloped countries in particular, with the necessary financial support for the realization of their major development projects

D) bring all developing countries up to the same level of economic prosperity

86. We can understand from the passage that the World Bank will usually not provide loans for investment projects in developing countries unless

A) these countries are in a position to finance a good part of these projects

B) these projects arc indeed of vital importance for the industrialization of these countries

C) It is absolutely certain that the money lent will be returned in full and with interest

D) it has been unanimously approved by the United Nations

87. The passage gives a general account of \dots .

A) why the World Bank has relaxed its traditionally strict loan policies in favor of developing countries

B) the main funding policy followed by the World Bank in relation to underdeveloped countries

C) the ways and means by which the World Bank has influenced developing countries

D) how the World Bank was founded and has been financed by the United Nations

Like so many other materials in Japan, paper too has come in for many hundreds of years of artistic consideration. At one period of the country's history, the paper on which a poem was written was as important as the poem itself. A thousand years ago there were whole towns actively engaged in making paper. Such towns still exist, but there were also many farming villages which then, as they do today, made paper to earn extra income during the winter. At present , about half of Japan's farmers must add to their incomes with winter jobs. Although a large amount of winter employment is provided by construction companies, some farmers continue to work at such cottage industries as paper-making.

88. It is obvious from the passage that the art of a papermaking in Japan ...

A) has a long history.B) was of no economic value at all in the past.

- C) was such a trivial work.
- D) has disappeared owing to industrialization.
- 89. The passage emphasizes that approximately fifty per cent of the farming population in Japan ...

- A) engages in a secondary occupation in the winter.
- B) prefers town life to village life.
- C) plans to give up farming and go into construction work.
- D) is not satisfied with current farming policies.

90. It is suggested that ${\bf paper-making}\ldots$

A) has never been a significant commercial interest in Japan.

- B) is still one of Japan's cottage industries.
- C) encouraged the development of poetry in Japan.
- D) has seldom been regarded as an art by the Japanese.
